Dear householder

Every ten years, important information about everyone in Northern Ireland is collected in a Census. Central and local government use the results from the Census to plan services such as schools and hospitals, so it is vital that all of us take part.

The Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency produces a wide range of official statistics and is responsible for conducting the Census. The next Census will be in 2011 and, to make it a success, we are carrying out a test of our procedures.

All the personal information that you give us is protected by law. It will be kept strictly confidential and only used for statistical purposes. No information that identifies individuals or households will be disclosed to anyone outside the Census Organisation.

Thank you for your help

Dr T N Caven
Registrar General, Northern Ireland
