Public Awareness of and Trust in Official Statistics, Northern Ireland 2021

The level of public trust in official statistics produced by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA), the government agency which produces the majority of Northern Ireland official statistics across all government departments remains high.

This is according to the latest findings from the 'Public awareness of and Trust in Northern Ireland Official Statistics' questions in the Northern Ireland Continuous Household Survey.

The report shows the majority of respondents (86%), surveyed in September to November 2021, trust NISRA official statistics a great deal or tend to trust them. The level of trust in NISRA statistics increases to 94% for those respondents who have heard of NISRA by name.

Trust in NISRA as the body which produces official statistics is also high, with 86% of respondents trusting NISRA a great deal or tending to trust NISRA; this remains higher than in 2019 (80%), prior to the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. This is also higher than trust in the Civil Service (81%) and compares favourably with trust in the media (32%) and the NI Assembly (30%).

Other key findings are as follows:

Awareness

1. Over half of respondents (55%) indicated they had heard of NISRA before being contacted about the survey.
2. Awareness of NISRA remains notably higher than in previous years (2009 to 2019) when 35% or less respondents had heard of NISRA but has dropped since 2020, when 58% of respondents had heard of NISRA.

Value

3. Statistics produced by NISRA are valued - over 9 out of 10 respondents (91%) agreed that statistics produced by NISRA are important to understand Northern Ireland.

Political Interference

4. Over four-fifths (83%) of respondents believe that statistics produced by NISRA are free from political interference.

5. Official statistics are statistical outputs produced by Government departments and agencies, the Office for National Statistics, and by other Crown bodies. Official statistics are fundamental to good government, to the delivery of public services and to decision-making in all sectors of society. National Statistics are a subset of official statistics.
6. The Code of Practice for Statistics, produced by the Office for Statistics Regulation (OSR), outlines the principles and detailed practices that producers of official statistics must commit to when producing and releasing official statistics. It is based on three pillars:
 - Trustworthiness is about having confidence in the people and organisations that produce statistics and data.
 - Quality is about using data and methods that produce assured statistics.
 - Value is about producing statistics that support society's needs for information.
